Milan, with children.

Your four-day city plan is here. The good tables, the little discoveries and the beautiful detours, considered for the whole family. Now it is your time to enjoy.

THE FAMILY EDIT / FOUR DAYS / VERY GOOD MEMORIES

A LETTER FROM JOIN & JOY

Ciao, Milano.

We are so happy you are here.

Whether this guide finds you at home with an open suitcase, or already on your way to Milan, welcome. We hope the next four days bring you beautiful discoveries and time to enjoy them together.

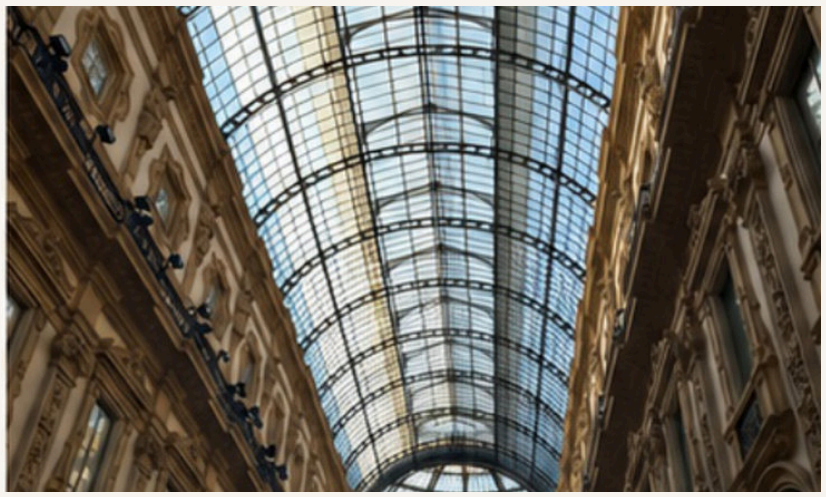

There are cities that teach you how to look. Milan is one of them. Leonardo da Vinci came here in 1482 as an artist and engineer. More than four centuries later, Prada opened its first boutique beneath the glass vaults of the Galleria in 1913. And at La Scala, opera has filled the stage since 1778. This is a city where invention, design and the pleasure of dressing well have always belonged to the same conversation.

For families, the pleasure is in the details: a pastry still warm from the oven, a courtyard discovered by chance, a tram passing in the sunshine, or a gelato worth making time for. We have planned four days of thoughtful experiences, cultural discoveries and very good food, with space to simply be together.
